Remnant Day Once More

Probably the Last One Before Christmas.

We're so busy in the store now-a-days that the time slips by rapidly and it's only by the increasing amount, day by day, of the odds and ends from basement to third floor that we realize Friday has come around

Every day you'll find nothing but reasonable prices at Miller & Rhoads', but on Remnant Day you get very low prices because it wouldn't pay us to carry over all the small pieces that have accumulated during the week.

So they're marshalled before you now for your picking and choosing. No better time than now, either, to have a clearing up day, for there's splendid Christmas gifts among these remnants if you look them up, and you may buy two perhaps for the money you thought it would take for one.

limiting speeches to thirty minutes in Committee of the Whole came up in regu-

Mr. Summers said he had rather have Air. Summers said he had rather have no debate than be confined to thirty minutes. He was pposed to gallopping in this way down to posterity. He had made but few speeches and could say more than any one else in thirty minutes, but it was impossible to properly discuss a great question in that length of time.

Judge Robertson said he was opposed to any such gag law. Because members had grown tired of hard work was no nad grown tired of hard work was no reason for now putting a cloture on debate and preventing free and full dis-cussion of all questions. He said he challenged any other deliberative body in the world for hard work in the convention since the committees made their reports. No other body that ever as-sembled had been confronted with such grave and far-reaching problems with came trooping up for consideration, discussion and deliberation.

MR. BRAXTON'S SPEECH.

Mr. Braxton strongly opposed the resolution. He said it was unjust to members of the convention and unjust to succeeding generations. He recapitulated the great questions which were just bethe great questions which were just be-ginning to come up for final action, and asserted that not a moment's time was being wasted in debate, declaring that this convention was confronted with more serious problems and more of them than all the other conventions heid in Virginia put together. He was utterly Virginia nut together. He was utterly opposed to stampeding the convention by a gag rule, just as the most important of all its work was beginning to come up for discussion.

Mr. Wise said that after six months had been spent in an effort to frame a Constitution, he come to the deliberate conclusion that a limit should be placed. on speeches in the public interest. He referred to the week's deliberation on one question in the Judiciary Committee's report, its futility as well as the repetition of words by innumerable speakers. ition of words by innumerable speakers.

Mr. Braxton had claimed that a man could not express himself in thirty minutes, but he was of the opinion that any man who understood his subject could say all he ought to say in thirty min-utes. He was in favor of the resolution because some members here had grossly abused the courtesy of free discussion, and by a multiplication of words and speeches had seriously retarded the work in hand.

UNJUSTIFIABLE GAG. Mr. Turnbull said speeches in the convention had already been limited to twenty minutes, and it would be an unjustifiable gag to limit speeches in the Committee of the Whole to thirty min-

MAJOR ANDERSON HEARD. The resolution of Mr. W. A. Anderson permitting the previous question to be called in Committee of the Whole was taken up.

Mr. Anderson said unless some limit was put to debate the convention would be in session six months longr. It had already taken more time than any other convention held on earth outside of Virginia, and this one had been in early as long as that of 1851, with no prospect of an end in sight.

He referred to other conventions in Southern States having before them the of them had taken more than four days of hard work in making and hear har long speeches over questions tha had been seitled more than once. He oferred to the folly of allowing two

Such a diet could not be kept up long without fatal results. A lady in Jacksonville, Fla., was crippled by an accident two years ago. Being without the power of exercise, an old stomach trouble that was hers for years became worse and it was a serious question regarding food that she could digest. A physician put her on Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food with some remarkable results. She says now that, not only is annually by the American people, millions of dollars spent for quack nostrums that promise to cure all diseases. There are over 59,000 listed patent medicines on the American market to-day, not counting three times that quantity not listed. Think of this over 200,000 patent medicines that pretend to cure everything from corns to consumption. IRONAL is not a patent medicine ovaporation. Nothing is taken from it, nothing is added to it. It is nature's prescription, unalloyed and unadulterated. It is non-toxic and harmless. No dosy however large, can injure. Note what the people say of this great remedy:

KIDNEYS, SCIATICA.

Rev. Wm. H. Price, of the Holston Conference, speaking of Ironal, says:

I suffered with my Kidneys and Sciatica. I used various remedies, but no permanent relies. My digestion not being the best, Dyspepsia and Headache frequently occurred. I began the use of Ironal for these troubles, and, to my surprise, soon saw that my Sciatica trouble was disappearing and my general health improving. Not satisfied that it was Ironal, I induced the Rev. G. W. Miles, who was similarly affected, to try this remedy, and it soon relieved him. Six other friends used it for similar trouble, and all experienced the same relief.

From Gilpin, Langdon & Co., Wholesale Druggists, Baltimore, Md.: We have been selling Ironal for a number of years, and find the demand steadily increasing, and that, too, entirely upon its own merits. We really think some steps should be taken to place this natural remedy more prominently before the American people, and, indeed, before the whole world. It has superior merit, and the advantage of being Nature's own combination, and is bound to commend itself to the people. We notice the largest demands come from places where it is longest and best known, which proves that, if you had it generally advertised, you could not manufacture it fast enough to supply the demand.

THE FEAR OF HUMBUG revents Many People From Trying a Good Medicine. Stomach troubles are so common and HELPLESS SITUATION.

Mr. Anderson charged that under the present rule the convention, as a body, was helpless to protect itself from a deliberate hold-up by any single member who had the lungs, and the inclination to do so. "If, he exclaimed, "the streams of eloquence continued to flow as they have poured for the past six months this convention wal be in session twelve months hence, and the very voltwelve months hence, and the very vol-ubility or deliberation will prevent the making of any constitution at all." Mr. Turnbull said that three assaults had been made on the committee of the whole and now this morning Mr. anderson, who has not been present more than
